Talking about sexuality can be very challenging for all parents, even more with your child with a developmental disability. This workshop will help you become more comfortable with the topic by providing insights and strategies for communicating with your child and assessing appropriate developmental stages for addressing certain topics. This workshop is for family members of individuals with disabilities of all ages.

While questions will certainly be encouraged, you are welcome to submit questions beforehand (or along with your RSVP) and they will be addressed during the discussion.
