

The Lower Hudson Special Education Task Force is proud to present

Communication Matters: A Fresh Take in 2025

Calling all stakeholders in special education to join a conversation on collaborative strategies to reduce conflict and improve outcomes for students with disabilities

Effective communication is more essential than ever in these challenging times, particularly when planning programming for students with learning or emotional needs. Attendees representing the full spectrum of stakeholders in special education will learn and share effective in-person, online and virtual communication strategies.

We will watch highlights of a video presenting communication tips, strategies and perspectives. During planned pauses in the video, the moderators will invite attendees to share their insights and perspectives on conflict-reducing strategies.

If you are a parent, guardian, teacher, school administrator, psychologist, service provider, attorney, advocate or any special education stakeholder, we encourage you to participate!
